Rabbinic Ruminations

We Jews do not "read the Bible", we study it. And whether this study takes place in the solitary confines of our homes or in more formal classes, a commentary is our indispensable guide, calling our attention to phrasing we would have otherwise passed over, and answering the questions that arise in our own minds as well as those that it would never have occurred to us to ask.

Since the Torah was given to the Children of Israel and it is not solely the province of

March B'nai Mitzvah

Matthew Harry Muskin – March 3, 2001

Matthew Muskin began his education at the Park Avenue Synagogue Nursery School at the age of two and a half and has continued at Park Avenue Synagogue for the past eleven years. He is presently in the Zayin grade.

Matthew is a seventh grade student at The Dalton School, where his academic interests include mathematics, social studies and Spanish. Although Matthew is serious student, he has a well developed sense of humor. For the past two years, he has acted in the Middle School's plays, and he also plays the violin in the Middle School Orchestra.

Matthew enjoys summers, when he has a chance to kick back and relax. He likes to play tennis and golf whenever he can. This coming summer, Matthew looks forward to doing some traveling with his family to Nice and Paris.

Matthew Irving Sills, Joshua Samuel Sills – March 10, 2001

Joshua and Matthew Sills, who are fraternal twins, are in the seventh grade at the Dalton School. Joshua enjoys English, Spanish, art and science, while Matthew's favorite subjects are French, math and science. They both have been on the Dalton soccer and baseball teams. Joshua hopes to join the wrestling team next year. Matt would like to play baseball, especially as a catcher. They are both excellent skiers.

Matt and Josh have attended the Park Avenue Synagogue schools since they started in the "two's program" in the Early Childhood Center. They have made some of their closest friends at Park Avenue Synagogue and look forward to continuing these friendships in the high school.

Josh and Matt have spent the past four summers at Camp Modin in Waterville, Maine. They enjoy the beautiful waterfront and camping trips in Mt. Katadin. This past Thanksgiving, they took a trip to Hawaii, where they both succeeded in standing up on a surf board. They have traveled with their family to Italy and France, and are looking forward to a promised trip to Israel.

Matt and Josh thank the Hebrew school staff and the synagogue clergy for their support, guidance and friendship as they prepare for their B'nai Mitzvah.

Eric Cohen – March 17, 2001

Eric Cohen began his Hebrew education at the Park Avenue Synagogue Early Childhood Center when he was three years old and has attended its Congregational School since kindergarten.

He is currently a seventh grade student at the Riverdale Country School, where he is an avid history and Latin student. His favorite sports include baseball, lacrosse, tennis, golf and skiing. Eric has spent the past three summers at Camp Cedar in Maine, where he will be returning this summer.

Hopefully, there will be peace in the Mideast soon so that Eric and his family can celebrate his bar mitzvah in Israel. Eric is looking forward to sharing his special occasion with his family and friends.

Ethel Danielle Bressman – March 31, 2001

Ethel Danielle Bressman, known around the synagogue as Ellie, attended her first Shabbat service at seventeen days old when she was given her Hebrew name by Rabbi David Lincoln. She has been an active member of the Park Avenue Synagogue community ever since, first as a Nitzanim congregant and then as a student in the Hebrew school. Ellie, like her older brothers Will and Ted, plans to continue her Jewish education at the Park Avenue Synagogue High School.

Ellie is a seventh grader at The Town School, where she wears "number 42" for her school's 7th and 8th grade basketball team, which she enjoys very much.

She spends her summers at Camp Ramah in Ojai, California with her siblings and cousins. She loves camp very much and can't wait to go back each summer to see her friends and family. She looks forward to being a counselor there one day.

Ellie is very excited about celebrating this most special occasion with the Park Avenue Synagogue community and with her family and friends.

scholars, an accessible, readable and popular exposition of its text is essential.

In the preface to the first edition of his commentary on the Torah, in 1936, Rabbi Joseph H. Hertz referred to the fruits of his labor as “a People’s Commentary”, an ambitious work that incorporated the best of the Jewish and non-Jewish scholarship of his day, combined with a distillation of the wealth of material embodied in our millennia-old tradition, in terms readily comprehensible to the Jew in the pew.

In a series of essays (additional notes) found at the end of each book of the Torah, Dr. Hertz presented to his readers the latest findings of his day from archeology, ancient language and cultural studies. He also exposed his audience to the controversial academic field of higher textual criticism with its anti-Jewish bias (Solomon Schechter referred to it as “higher anti-Semitism”), and sought to counter it.

A lot has happened in sixty-five years since the Hertz Chumash was first published. Not only has there been an information explosion in the fields of ancient Semitic languages and cultures, illuminating cryptic biblical phrases and institutions, but Jewish biblical scholarship has come into its own and flourished. Embracing the same tools, techniques and approaches as the German academicians, whom Hertz and Schechter railed against, these modern scholars, starting with Yehezkel Kaufmann, in 1937, have restored our past to its rightful place.

A lot has happened in sixty-five years since the Hertz Chumash was first published. The spiritual and inspirational needs of the Jewish people, now with a homeland of our own, now more secure than ever in the United States, have changed dramatically.

A new commentary for a new era, that still draws heavily upon our rich, classical sources, has been a long time in coming. My teacher, the late Seminary Chancellor Gerson D. Cohen dreamed of it more than 20 years ago (he referred to it affectionately as “Avis”, in contradistinction to the “Hertz Pentateuch”).

As our membership was informed recently, the chumash, Etz Hayim (Tree of Life), is nearly ready for publication. Sample chapters of its uncorrected proofs (which you may borrow from me, if you are curious) corroborate the success of this undertaking: to provide “a new commentary which would reflect the latest scholarship, the ideology of the Conservative Movement, and speak to the contemporary heart and mind of our people.”

“It is a Tree of Life for those who grasp it” (Proverbs 3:18).

May this new edition/addition to our congregation enrich and enhance our lives.

— Rabbi Kenneth A. Stern

Book of the Month:

Ruth R. Wisse: The Modern Jewish Canon: A Journey Through Language and Culture

What makes a great Jewish book? What makes a book “Jewish” in the first place? Ruth R. Wisse, one of the leading scholars in the field of Jewish literature, sets out to answer these questions in The Modern Jewish Canon. Wisse takes us on an exhilarating journey through language and culture, penetrating the complexities of Jewish life as they are expressed in the greatest Jewish novels of the 20th century, from Isaac Babel to Isaac Bashevis Singer, from Elie Wiesel to Cynthia Ozick. The modern Jewish canon, Wisse proposes, comprises those books that convey an experience of Jewish actuality, those in which “the authors or characters know and let the reader know that they are Jews,” for better or worse. Wisse is not content merely to evaluate the great books of Jewish literature; she also links the works together to present a new kind of Jewish history, as it has been told through the literature of the past hundred years. She tells the story of a multilingual, multinational people, one that has experienced an often turbulent relationship with Hebrew (the liturgical and scriptural language) and Yiddish (the commonplace vernacular tongue), as well as with the numerous languages spoken by Jews around the world. Wisse insists that language informs the essential meaning of a Jewish work, creating and ratifying political and religious alliances, historical and cultural circumstance, and methods of interpretation.

A Thank You From the Parents' Association

Once again, the Flea Market and the Book Fair were back to back. Once again, our wonderful volunteers dug deep and gave us their all. The result was two fabulous events.

Our Mitzvah Day Flea Market benefited from everyone's generosity. We received many wonderful donations. The clothes and household items that were donated were either packed up for distribution or sold. The money we made went into a fund that helps Jewish Russian immigrant children go to summer camp. There were many wonderful volunteers that made the Flea Market's success possible. The Parents' Association would like to thank: Madelyn Adamson, Helene Agress, Muriel Bessinger, Brian Chenensky, Harriet Feiweil, Ellen Harrow, Debbie Mallow and Susan Wasserman. We would also like to thank our young and very enthusiastic salesperson, Ava Feuer.

The Jewish Family Book Fair was one of the best book fairs we have had in awhile. We used a new vendor, Judaic Treasures, which supplied us with lots of new book titles, beautiful gift items, and delicious cookies. But what made the fair extra special was the increased involvement of the Nursery School. Thanks to Jill Sabin Garner, Marcy Janover, Eva Usdan and especially Marcy Lehrman, the Nursery School children and their parents had a wonderful Book Fair experience. A special thank you to David Gopstein. David came on Thursday evening to help breakdown and pack up the Book Fair. David, you did a great job and good luck at Princeton University! Also helping to breakdown the Book Fair were Bill Harrow and Mason Haupt.

This year's Book Fair raffle winners were:

- Knick tickets, donated by Diane and Craig Solomon, won by Ellen Braverman
- Baseball signed by Derek Bell, donated by Steiner Sports, went to Jonathan Stone.

- Tickets to a 92nd Street Y event won by Helene Lupatkin.
- Gift certificate, donated by Manhattan Fruitier, won by Debra Rosensaft.
- Gift basket, donated by Eli's E.A.T., went to Melanie Schneider.

To all the wonderful volunteers, I say thank you.
